

VINCENT THOMAS ARMENTI, MD, PHD

- ▣ VINCENT THOMAS ARMENTI, MD, PhD, of Marlton, NJ, passed away on September 4th, 2014 at the age of 61.
- ▣ Vince was a dedicated transplant surgeon, educator and medical researcher who worked in Philadelphia for over 25 years.
- ▣ He received the Distinguished Alumni Award from Jefferson College of Graduate Studies in 2009.
- ▣ He is survived by his wife Dawn and their two children Stephen and Kathleen.

The National Transplantation Pregnancy Registry (NTPR) was established in 1991 by Dr. Armenti to study the outcomes of pregnancies in female organ transplant recipients and those fathered by male transplant recipients.

The NTPR is a valuable resource for both recipients and healthcare providers who are seeking information about parenthood after transplantation.

Vince was dedicated to the transplant recipients he cared for and mentored countless medical students and residents.

The NTPR stands as the longest-running voluntary pregnancy registry in the world.
